

OUR GERMAN CITIZENS

A local feature of the present situation is that we have living with us and playing an honorable part in our civic, business and national life a large number of Germans, whose sympathies may not unnaturally be with the country of their origin during these times of stress. We are sure that they will wisely refrain from any expressions that may be construed as offensive, and we are equally sure that our citizens of British origin will be careful to avoid anything that may tend to make their presence here uncomfortable. Although their Fatherland may be at war, they are yet our friends and trusted neighbors and business associates.