J. Henry Peters Declares They Are Protected in Ontario.

In a letter to the papers which published certain statements attributed to Dr. Redderoth, Mr. J. Henry Peters, German Consul in Toronto before the war, declares that he had no knowledge whatever of any speech or statement so attributed, and that some of those reported are utterly absurd. He adds:

"I am in a position to judge, perhaps better than anyone else in Ontario, the effect of the Canadian Government's measures for the protection of German citizens in Ontario, and have frequently avowed them to be absolutely fair.

"Beyond a few irresponsible demonstrations at the beginning of the war, which were promptly discouraged by the police and the entire press, no case of insult, persecution, or indignity offered to German citizens in Ontario has come to my notice. On the contrary, I have heard only of exceptionally courteous and fair treatment, not only by the authorities, but also by the press and the public at large, for which the highest praise is due and cheerfully given by every true German in Canada."
