

The University of Toronto, which by reason of its close affiliation with German culture, might be expected to hold out for some redeeming qualities in the German nation, has come forth with all other branches of the community and in a splendid opening address to the students President Falconer voiced a complete and utterly sweeping condemnation of all things German, even that portion of German culture which has had a hand in the development of the present situation.