The Daily News yesterday published the results of an investigation by a staff reporter at Shelburne, Ont., which revealed many facts in the life history of Louisa Markesfeldt, the German girl detained here on suspicion that she is a spy. The story was absolutely exclusive. Indeed, the local police were as much surprised as any one because The Daily News story contained much which was new to them. The police are still wondering about the story because it opened their eyes.

But just let us whisper a secret. The Daily News reporter who made so successful an investigation at Shelburne is still following the trail of the "Girl of Mystery." His investigations have led him from Shelburne to another part of the Province. He will have a new story about Louisa Markesfeldt and it will be worth reading. But remember The Daily News will have it exclusively.
