Stole Purse Owned by School Teacher—It Held Sixteen Dollars

Police Court Interpreter Dr. Adalla explained to Col. Denison to-day that George Dusurka, who pleaded guilty to stealing a shirt from a local departmental store, wanted to join the Russian army.

"A good idea!" exclaimed his worship, "if he got to the front he could steal shirts from the Germans."

The case was remanded.

A grave mistake has been made; I can vindicate myself," was the declaration made by David Grossman, brought up on a charge of vagrancy.

Detective Mitchell found Grossman peddling on York street, and discovered over 300 pieces of jewelry worth many hundreds of dollars in his possession. One of the watches bears the inscription "Jesse James."

"I'm going to remand you a week," said the Magistrate, despite Grossman's protest.

German Is Interned.

Kurt Guillame, a German with a French name, discharged as a vagrant, was interned. Detective Morrow, searching Guillame's room, found a letter bitterly pro-German in tone, also plans of the Grand Trunk Railway and the bridges at Niagara Falls. Guillame has been reporting to the police, but is considered dangerous.
