

Lethbridge is to lose the detention camp, the internees to be shipped either to B.C. or Spirit Lake, Quebec, where escape is almost impossible and few prisoners will risk it. The camp at Bauff and several other camps throughout the country are being broken up, it being the intention of the government to concentrate the internees in as few camps as possible during the winter.