

At the Fort Henry internment camp there are class discriminations, while at the Portsmouth penitentiary there are not. It should be borne in mind that all Germans are of the same breed and the high are no better than the low.