

AUSTRIANS NOT TO BE LET TRAVEL AS MUCH AS FORMERLY

Austrians in this city at least are not finding it so easy to go and come as has been their custom since the commencement of the war. This privilege has been granted them rather freely.

In the past all that has been necessary for them to do was to go to the police station, show their registration card and ask for a permit to go to another town, and the permit was granted.

There have been some very remarkable revelations as to their ramifications, when some of them have appeared in police court. One Austrian a few weeks ago was rounded up by the police and it was discovered that within a month he had travelled from Fort William to Montreal, and from there to Hamilton and from Hamilton back to the Sault, and was then looking for permission to go to another town.

At last the clench has been put on these fellows, and now they are told there is plenty of work for them in the Sault, where the Steel Plant is all the time looking for laborers, and they can make as much money here as anywhere else.
