

Puts Wad Under Pillow in House of "Friend"

Following the example of his host, who is a roomer at 77 Chestnut street, John Poheheski, of Whitby, who had been invited to spend the week-end in the city, deposited his bills beneath his pillow for safe-keeping. Just after he arose the money amounting to $167 disappeared, and he hurried for the police. Bill Slovodian, his friend, was still in bed when Acting Detective Tuft decided to search the room. He was roused from his sleep and the money found under a sheet. Slovodian is now charged with theft.

"Flu" Will Return, Dr. Hastings' Opinion

Dr. Hastings, M.O.H., concurs in his opinion with New York and Washington authorities, who consider a recurrence of last winter's influenza epidemic probable. He does not, however, anticipate that the severity of the last outbreak will be repeated, and considers that since a Department of Health has been established by the Federal Government, and the local Board of Health has authority for any necessary expenditures in the event of an epidemic, adequate means are provided for combatting the disease should it reappear.

ALIENS EAGER TO GO HOME.

Brantford, July 27.—(Special.)—As soon as shipping routes to Germany are open there will be a big exodus of enemy aliens from Brantford, who number some twelve hundred. The steamship offices here are daily besieged by foreigners asking for tickets to Germany, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria.
