

NO CALL YET RECEIVED

Cape Breton Reservists Are Expecting Summons

Sydney, N.S., July 29—"No mobilization order in connection with the Austro-Servian war has yet been issued here," said A. N. McLennan, Austrian consul. "We are, however," he added, "expecting such orders shortly, in light of the new developments in Europe."

Mr. McLennan stated that there were some twelve or fifteen hundred Austrians and Hungarians in Sydney, all of whom will be affected by the orders when they come. Rev. M. C. A. Kinsale, Presbyterian missionary to the non-Catholic foreigners of the district, stated that as yet he had received no intimation of mobilization orders. "There are a number of reservists in Sydney and the surrounding towns," he said, "and these, of course, will be directly affected. Two years ago, as a result of similar orders being issued, a large number of Austro-Hungarians were called home."

Questioned as to the number of Servians in Cape Breton, Mr. Kinsale said he did not know of any. "There are a number West and at the

So, but I know of none around here," he said.

Rev. Mr. Kinsale is a patriotic Austrian himself, and is a native of Flume, on the Adriatic Sea, some fifty or seventy-five miles from Trieste, and in a section of Austria around which the army will centre in case of an attack by water.
