

A VICIOUS ORGAN

A Ruthenian Roblin organ, published under the title, "Canada," comments viciously upon incidents of the recent campaign. For instance:

Mrs. McClung personally undertook to clean out all the dirty corners of Manitoba, and told the people all sorts of fantastic stories about Premier Roblin.

We are not surprised. It is well known that every woman's tongue is a detractor of others, especially when it is paid at a rate of $25 a day.

Some of our people worked very ardently during the election for the Liberals to the detriment of our national interests. They were helping the Orangemen in their work of assimilation for the reward of Judas Iscariot. The Protestants spent thousands of dollars every year amongst these renegades to carry on their destructive work and to destroy our language and everything that is dear to us. The Protestants pay and the traitors do the dog's work faithfully as dogs ought to do.

If the Orangemen, with their traitorous allies, made up their minds to cut our throats, as they did the Irishmen's in the seventeenth century, then the Presbyterian bull-dogs and blood-hounds would certainly be to the fore in the work.

We are informed that the Liberal leaders at The Pas, unable to make a success of their campaign methods, are appealing to their chiefs to send them, for Heaven's sake, Mrs. McClung, who, as people say, was paid by the Liberals $25 a day to insult, in babbling, story-book fashion, Premier Roblin throughout the province. The Liberals are sly. They know that whenever the devil cannot succeed a woman has to be employed."

As for the attacks upon Protestants and the Orange body in particular, they are well able to look after themselves. The statements regarding Mrs. McClung and the part women played in the campaign are insulting and untruthful. Mrs. McClung's denial that she received a single cent from the Liberals is ample for any honest-minded man in the community. Added to Mrs. McClung's denial is the positive statement from the Liberal executive that she was not remunerated for her time and expense from the Liberal party funds.
