

Alien in Khaki Comes to Register

Canada has the unique distinction of enlisting alien enemies in the fighting forces of Great Britain, and many of these loyal foes are at present training at the Exhibition Camp. A Macedonian subject of the Sultan put in an appearance at the Alien Registrar's Office yesterday, fully clad in the King's khaki uniform. His loyalty was not called in question, but, although he had been in Canada ten years, he had not become naturalized. He was technically an alien enemy and had to go through the ordinary form of registration and application for naturalization papers. There are a large number of similar cases in the camp, and they all have to conform to the new regulation, which states that all who serve in the Canadian contingent must be fully naturalized British subjects.
