

Military Arrest German

The military authorities have for some time been watching a man named Charles Berger who carries on business in St. Catharines as the "Falcon Printery."

Berger is a German and has been in the habit of crossing the border very frequently and on Saturday he was arrested by the military guard on the bridge.

A search was later made both at his home and business place.

The authorities are very reticent about the matter and will divulge nothing as to the result of the search but the man is still being held.
