

Walks from Fort George, Asks To be Interned Here

The fame of Fort McNichol is spreading far and wide, and is attracting Germans and Austrians from all parts of the west.

This morning a German reservist of the Landsturm arrived at the police station and applied for admission to the internment camp. He claimed his name was Max Shoitsay, born in Berlin, and that he had walked all the way from Fort George, B.C. Since he had come so far, his Worship did not have the heart to refuse him and ordered him to be taken out to Fort McNichol forthwith.
