

THERE'S A LIMIT TO TOLERATION

The Sudbury Mining News voices public sentiment in its opinion of how to treat enemy aliens who publicly manifest their sympathy for German and her allies.

"It is well known," says the News, "that large numbers of enemies in this section are doing pretty much as they please, and evidently think that the Canadians are a pretty easy-going lot. For example, at a mine not far from Sudbury, a few days after the Lusitania was torpedoed by the Germans and hundreds were murdered, a gang of Austrians held a big celebration, and as no person here had authority to arrest and intern them, we presume they are still at large. If the regulations governing the alien enemies are going to be enforced in this section, it will be necessary to have them all register, especially the ones who hold the high positions, as they are really more dangerous than the ignorant class. The Canadians had patience with these not always silent sympathizers of German atrocities, but our self-control is rapidly giving way to a dangerous undercurrent of passion, which, if it does not make the immediate position of the Germans in Canada intolerable, will certainly make the future impossible. Those who are not with us, are against us, and those who persist even in quiet sympathy with the war gluttons, have passed beyond the realm of sympathetic or decent thought.

"There is urgent need for the authorities to get busy at once, for loyal Canadians are not going to stand by and see our soldiers sneered and laughed at by their enemies, without forcibly reminding the offenders that they live in Canada, and that their attitude is an insult to the people from they are receiving their daily bread."
