Four Others Seriously Wounded at Amherst Camp

Amherst, N.S., June 24.—While the prisoners of war in the detention camp here were being conducted to the compound for physical exercise, one of them, Fritz Clause, assaulted one of the internment camp police, knocking him insensible. The camp police, with the guard, were called out to quell the mutiny, and in the meantime the originator of the trouble was shot dead, and four of the other prisoners were seriously wounded.
