

SIXTEEN ITALIAN RESERVISTS WENT THROUGH SAULT

Many were the expressions of anger against the Germans that were given voice to by a party of sixteen Italian reservists, who passed through here on the C.P.R. train at noon en route for the front in their native land, when they read in the Daily Star's morning extra that a British transport, the Royal Edward, had been sunk by the enemy.

They eagerly gave their opinion of the Germans, and let it be known that they intended to do to them when they got a chance. The party was bound for Montreal, and from there they will go to New York, from which port they will sail. They were from Duluth, Minn.
