

Alien Foiled in Run for Liberty

TORONTO, Sept. 2. — Jumping out of a second-story window, a German prisoner named Brucacher, who was being treated for indigestion in the military hospital at Kingston, made a break for liberty, but was caught. He was captured by William Mitchell, the chef of the hospital. The chef, who is small, had quite a tussle with the German, who is six feet tall, but without any assistance, marched him back to the hospital.
