

Some of the stray dogs picked up in the streets of Montreal are to be sent to the internment camp at Spirit Lake, Que., there to be trained for service in hauling sleighs, etc. With their wives and children with them, and a number of Towsers working and romping about, the war prisoners should not consider themselves so badly off in their confinement. Their lot might be cast in worse places.