

FORT HENRY PRISONERS

Have Comfortable Quarters—Improvements Have Been Made.

Despite the fact that threats have been made against his life by prisoners-of-war in Fort Henry, American Consul F. S. S. Johnson went to the Fort on Wednesday afternoon and investigated a special case. The prisoners now seem well satisfied with what the authorities are doing. A new roof has been put on, better lights have been put into the rooms, and many improvements brought about which should greatly increase the standard of living for the Germans under Major P. G. C. Campbell's guardianship.
