

Sick German Not Interned

Man Sent Here from Winnipeg is Returned — Nobody Wants Him

Winnipeg, April 13.—There is an alleged dangerous German named Koch roaming around Winnipeg at large; and it all happened because he wasn't feeling well.

Koch was discovered by the immigration department, and the commissioner, J. Bruce Walker, immediately took steps to put an end to the suspect's freedom. He was satisfied that the man ought not to be at liberty, and in fact was a menace to the public.

Consequently Mr. Walker had Koch sent to the internment camp at Brandon. On his arrival there Koch said that he wasn't well and apparently was able to prove it.

Anyway he was sent back to the immigration department, with the advice that as he wasn't well the internment camp couldn't intern him.

A few minutes after that Mr. Walker took Koch over to the alien enemy registration bureau in Winnipeg.

"There," he said, "is your German. Now you can take him or leave him."
