I.W.W.'s Headed Off at North Portal and Made to Stay Out of Canada

North Portal, Sask., Aug. 14. — A motley throng of 150 harvesters, professional hoboes and I. W. W.'s arrived at the border on Saturday night, the vanguard of the band who usually drift northward in the wake of the ripening harvest. The Canadian immigration officers were kept very busy sifting the genuine harvesters from the I. W. W.'s and undesirables. A vigilance committee of police and citizens was hastily organized and rounded up a number of the band in the curling rink, where they had taken up sleeping quarters. Superintendent Halkett, of the C. P. R., has been communicated with regarding the placing of a couple of special police here during the harvest and threshing season. Mayor Jones has been sworn in as a special constable, and every precaution is being taken to prevent undesirables getting into Canada. A number of the band were handcuffed, but were not locked up, being let off with a good lecture and the promise to stay in the United States.
