

In making their escape from the Lethbridge interment camp, the German prisoners moved thirty tons of earth from a tunnel to effect a passageway out. The tunnel was over $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet square and 111 feet long. This gives a total of 694 cubic feet of earth removed, which would amount to more than thirty tons or a carload.