

GERMANS IN BRANDON STILL LOTH TO REGISTER

Germans living in Brandon are still loth to register and comply with the alien regulation requirements. Out of a total of seven hundred registrations there are less than ten Germans among them and with one or two exceptions, those who owe allegiance to the Kaiser and who have registered are army reservists. The authorities here are daily innundated with enquiries from Austrians who have trouble of some kind. Yesterday one man complained of assault by a fellow countryman because he had talked about the war, and another man asked the authorities to help him because his wife had run away to Carberry with another man.