

BARON POLENZ RELEASED FROM FORT HENRY CAMP

Baron Polenz, the only genuine German baron in captivity in Canada, was released on parole from Fort Henry on Friday afternoon. Last May the Baron was arrested in Porcupine because of his nationality.

At the fort he was a model prisoner. Some time ago the Whig had the privilege of making an inspection of the camp, and at the time the Baron was directing a class of physical drill. In an interview he expressed his wish that the prisoners keep themselves in good form, mentally and physically, and all of the time he was a prisoner he worked hard to further these ends. In all disputes between the officers and the prisoners the Baron always acted as an arbitrator, and did his best to "keep peace in the family." He is exceptionally well educated and a pleasant personality, and his presence will be missed from the now intimate family circle of Major P. G. C. Campbell's hotel. No reason was given out for the parole being granted.
