

THE KING EDWARD SCHOOL IS FILLED TO OVERFLOWING

Whole Eight Rooms of New
School are in Use
Today.

Although the King Edward School is not altogether completed, it is so close to it that you could hardly tell the difference. There is just a little finishing up work to be done, and that is largely on the outside.

The whole eight rooms that the enlarged school contains are now in use, and the attendance at the school is so great that they are full almost to overflowing. The district around this school is pretty densely populated, and it also serves quite a large territory.

The pupils enrolled at the school include many from the foreign colony, and it has the largest attendance of this nature of any school in the city. These include many Italians, Finns, Swedes, Austrians, and so on. This shows not only the cosmopolitan nature of our west end population, but the large attendance also shows how rapidly it is increasing.
