

THREE THOUSAND LACKING JOBS

Telling Arraignment of Conditions Now In Tory
Toronto

TORONTO, July 28—Three thousand men lined up this morning anxious to get a job in connection with the new Union station. Yesterday morning it was the same and out of 3,000 only thirty-five were lucky enough to be told to start in the initial work of erecting Toronto's new depot. It was a telling indication of labor conditions in Toronto today.
