

Fifteen Italians from the Italian community in the west end of the city left yesterday for New York whence they will sail for Italy. They are men, according to the Royal Italian Consular agent here, Mr. William Grassi, who are out of work and think they will be better off in Italy than they are in the Sault.