

German and Austrian prisoners of war are still keeping the police and military authorities busy. One woman pleaded to-day that her husband, now in custody at Stanley Barracks, should be released. Two Austrians who came to Toronto from New York via Montreal, were anxious to find if they would have any trouble in getting back to the American city. It was thought that they would have no difficulty.