

Alex. Doduk, an Austrian, had had nothing to eat for two days, and had nowhere to sleep, so he stole a bottle of whiskey from the back of a delivery rig, with the dual purpose of allaying the qualms of hunger, and of getting him a police cell wherein to lay him down to rest. He appeared at the police court today, and a remand was granted until Saturday. In the meantime Col. Lindsay of the Aliens' Registration office will be notified.
