

SPOUSE INTERNED, WIFE WEPT.

Mrs. Harmann Made Vain Plea For Her Husband.

Petitioning for the release of her husband, who was recently interned as a German spy, Mrs. Geo. Harmann made a tearful appeal to the Registrar of Alien Enemies Thursday afternoon.

"If he were a German spy," she said, "I would tell him he got what he deserved, but in conversation with me, he has always favored the British cause."

Harmann's visits to the training camps, she explained by saying that as a traveler for chewing gum and allied confections he only went to the camps to sell his goods to the soldiers. Registrar A. J. Russell Snow advised her to make application to Ottawa for her husband's release, in which event he would give her his reasons, in detail, for ordering his internment.

Permission for leave to obtain employment in the United States was denied Joseph Wertz, who up to recently was in charge of the lunch counter at McCarron's Hotel, but who has lost his position there owing to the change in the proprietorship of the hotel.

An application for the freedom of Fritz Loch, recently interned for speaking pro-German propaganda, came from the Broadview Y.M.C.A., of which he is a member, but Registrar Snow, after considering the case, declined to recommend his release.
