Austrian with Crime

HAYSTACK BURNED

Charged with having set fire to a haystack after an altercation with his neighbor, Joe Kushmer will appear in the police court this afternoon. The charge of arson is laid by T. M. Littlejohn, the neighbor in question, and it is alleged that the Austrian committed the damage after using seditious language and after he had been angered by some trifling damage to his potato crop. Mr. Littlejohn farms in the Arrow River district, and one of his men, when cutting the grain went a few feet over some potato crop. Prisoner is also alleged to have first admitted the arson but now denies any such admission.

Other cases in the police court included two drunks. They were assessed two dollars and costs. Hugh McIntosh was again remanded on the charge of stealing an overcoat and pair of gloves.
