"HANS SCHMIDT" PROVES A CHICAGO RESERVIST

CARL RUDOLPH HAD LETTERS FROM GERMAN CONSUL— TRIED TO ESCAPE.

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

Windsor, Feb. 11.—Arrested by Canadian immigration officers when he attempted to enter Canada at this port yesterday, a German, who gave his name as Hans Schmidt, was to-day identified as Carl Rudolph, a German reservist of the Kaiser's army, who lives in Chicago.

Rudolph, when examined by immigration authorities, said he wanted to join the Canadian army, but two letters found hidden in his clothing and signed by the German Consulate Chicago disprove this statement. It is thought the prisoner expected to stowaway on some boat bound for Holland.

Late last night Schmidt, or Rudolph, attempted to make his escape from the Armories, where he had been kept under military guard, and had succeeded in forcing a lock on one of the windows when he was discovered. When told he might have been shot, Rudolph replied death was better than confinement under the British flag.

A Temperance Hall for the Canadians

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Feb. 11.—Private enterprise desires to erect a large temperance hall at Shorncliffe for the benefit of Canadians coming into town from neighboring camps and barracks. The Y.M.C.A. buildings are excellent, as they are the only provided entertainment in the camp itself. Soldiers going to town have little else but to resort to the public house. General Steele writes that he is only too glad to hear of the opening of any place where Canadians can have club accommodation free from access to drink.

Corporal Sead, 32nd Battalion, stationed at Shorncliffe, was committed for trial for bigamy. The prisoner belongs to Brandon and admits the offence.
