

FATAL SHOOTING OVER COOKING SUPPER

Magro Giovanni is Charged With Murder of Nick Delucco

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

Welland, June 8.—A fatal shooting affray occurred in a boarding car on the Wabash Railroad at Welland Junction last evening, the principals being three Italians employed on a construction gang. They quarrelled over the cooking of supper. It is said, with the result that Magro Giovanni went to his bunk and secured a shotgun, with which he is alleged to have fatally wounded Nick Delucco, and also wounded his own brother, George Giovanni. Delucco died before the ambulance reached the scene, and George Giovanni is in the hospital. He will recover. One charge from the shotgun is said to have wounded both men.

Magro Giovanni was taken into custody and was given a preliminary hearing this afternoon, when a charge of murder was laid against him. Dr. McBride, Coroner, opened an inquest at noon to-day, and after the jury had viewed Delucco's body an adjournment was made until next Tuesday night for taking of evidence.

The man under arrest told the authorities, it is said, that he shot in self-defence. W. M. German, K.C., M.P., has been engaged to defend him.

WHITBY OFFICER HOME: GIVEN GLAD WELCOME

Lt. C. PERRY HAS SEEN HARD FIGHTING — E. BROUGHTON BACK TO FINISH COURSE.

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

Whitby, June 8.—Last evening Lieut. Cullen Perry, who has seen service in France, Egypt and Saloniki, reached Whitby and was given a tremendous welcome. Lieut. Perry was wounded in the face while fighting in France, and is now on a three months' leave. He is the second son of the late John Ham Perry, whose father established Perry's Corners, as Whitby was called in its early days. A brother of Lieut. Perry is now in England on leave from the war scene. These brothers went overseas with the first Canadian contingent and have seen much hard fighting.

This evening Ernest Broughton, a medical student, who has been serving in hospitals in France and Saloniki, son of W. A. Broughton, reached home and was met by Mayor Warren, members of the Council and citizens. Mr. Broughton was given his discharge that he might complete his medical studies, which he hopes to do before the end of the year.

COMPLAINTS BASELESS, SAYS CONSUL JOHNSON

U. S. OFFICIAL INVESTIGATED CONDITIONS IN ALIEN CAMP AT FORT HENRY.

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

Kingston, June 8.—After inspection of the alien enemies internment camp at Fort Henry, United States Consul Johnson reports that he found all complaints groundless. Two-thirds of the prisoners expressed themselves as well satisfied with the treatment they received. Quite a number of improvements are being made at the fort, and the prisoners are being given more liberties.
