

MR. JACOBS' FRIENDS.

It is noteworthy that Mr. SAMUEL W. JACOBS, M.P., who proclaimed himself in Parliament a champion of the propriety of breaking contracts whenever one feels like it and has the power to do so—the exact Prussian principle—is also a gentleman who in Parliament has opposed limitations to the entry of aliens into this country.

And the two things go nobly together. He would let aliens flood in who know nothing about Canada, careless and aim only to grab all they can, and he would teach them when they get here that they don't need to be honest. Nor law-abiding either.

Mr. JACOBS' argument was that because war cancels contracts and pledges, so do strikes. But war of that kind, the Prussian kind, cancels law too. The Prussians paid no attention to Belgian law. Mr. JACOBS' friends from Europe thus get just as good an argument from him to break laws as to break contracts.
